Los Angeles, California, May 26, 2005 - No Vacancy, a new feature-length documentary was screened this evening at Loyola Marymount University, Hilton Theatre.

The film was written, directed and produced by well known ecologist, writer and filmmaker Michael Tobias. Working closely with him, Andy Waterman produced and mixed the stereo broadcast and 5.1 theatrical and DVD soundtracks.

No Vacancy, a ninety minute documentary, explores issues of women’s reproductive health, family planning and the environmental consequences of the population explosion. No Vacancy was filmed in India, Indonesia, China, Thailand, Ghana, Nigeria, Iran, France, Italy, Holland, Mexico and the United States. Part of the challenge for Andy Waterman was to seamlessly incorporate appropriate world music. “Andy was the best possible choice for this project,” said editor, Marc Griffith. “He’s such an accomplished soundtrack, post-production professional. His involvement truly enhanced the film.”

No Vacancy was made possible by a generous grant from The Fred H. Bixby Foundation.
